"Isle of Spice" at Opera House Feb. 23.

B. C. Whitney's big musical company will present the piquant musical mixture, "The Isle of Spice," at Holland's Opera House, Feb. 23, with precisely the same cast and elaborate scenic and costume investiture which were a feature of the 150 nights run at the Majestic Theatre, New York City, which has but recently been completed.

There are many reasons that will account for the success of "The Isle of Spice" has achieved. In the first place, the story is well told, full of comedy situations and brilliant dialogue, while the music is tuneful, jingly and original, with nothing reminiscent about it. Many of the songs have become popular, and they have already reached the hand organ stage in the larger cities.

The company is large, well balanced and made up of popular comedians and comedienne, while the chorus is the largest any musical organization ever carried, and is composed of young and pretty women, whose work is characterized by vim and ginger that is positively refreshing and can only come from the abundant spirits of the young. The stage management is excellent. There is never a second, from the rise of the curtain in the first act to the finale of the second, when there is not something doing that either pleases the eye, ear or sensibilities.

The company is an aggregation of people whose names are well known to the theatre-going public, and is composed of such people as Sam Mylie, Herbert Cawthorn, Harry Watson, Leslie Leigh, Mattie Martz, May Sweeney, Susie Forrester, Robert Kane, and numerous others well known in the theatrical world. This attraction already has two seasons to its record and the manner in which it is being received the present season, will undoubtedly satisfy the management that theatre patrons will welcome its appearance also her season.

Chemistry in the United States.

Dr. Paul Kohn, who was a delegate from the Austrian department of commerce to the world's fair at St. Louis and a member of the international jury, has written an essay on the chemical industry in the United States with particular reference to the scientific education for the same. He says that as in every other industrial branch the United States has also made most rapid progress in chemical industry and has made good use of the experience of Europe. Aided by the tremendous wealth of raw materials, a free form of government and American energy it has developed marvelously, but one thing is lacking, i. e., the close connection between science and practice, which is especially existing in Germany. But the desire to study German methods is becoming very apparent in the United States, and it will have the result that in the markets of the world in the chemical industry, in which now England France and Germany have the lead, a change in favor of the United States will take place.

Comanches' Only Holiday.

The only holiday the Comanches have ever learned to celebrate is the Fourth of July. They were taught this 30 years ago by the soldiers at Fort Sill, who came out on their reservation the day of American independence and ran horse races with the Indians and indulged in other holiday sports. The Indians learned the significance of the celebration, and every year make preparation for appropriate exercises. Another fact is noticeable in the progress being made by the Comanches, and that is that they spend less money foolishly than heretofore. When Lawton was new and every fancy article on display in its show windows was novel to the red man, then he purchased without regard to necessity or comfort, but just to obtain something that was attractive to his eye. Indians now are buying more meat and bread and clothes and less fancy things and liquor. They fight less, stay at home more and seem to be well on the road toward a much higher plane of citizenship. — Kansas City Journal.
